ANANYA PAL: A CASE STUDY

Ananya Pal has been attending RISE's Year to Learn class since 2013. She is a hard working and attentive girl who cares about her education and has high aspirations.

Ananya lives with her mother; her father sadly passed away very recently from a heart attack which has not only left Ananya devastated emotionally but also means she and her mother are struggling financially. Thankfully her uncles are taking care of them for the moment and she helps their long standing family business of making statues of Hindu goddesses with clay. These goddesses are purchased in abundance during Pujas and Ananya spends her time supporting where she can.

Ananya visited Kolkata for the first time with Year to Learn friends as a part of the Daan Utsav, India's Joy of Giving Festival in 2015

Ananya has a creative flair that she applies to making small handicrafts and she also enjoys drawing. She had the opportunity to pursue these interests when RISE took her to Kolkata for Daan Utsav, the Joy of Giving festival held at the Birla Industrial and Technological Museum (BITM) - there she attended workshops on bottle painting and puppet making for Dolls Theatre which she thoroughly enjoyed.

ANANYA has grown into a bright young lady with Year to Learn & has high hopes and aspirations
